

The Hafesa Group strengthens its management team with two new additions

- Álvaro Sanz Pita joins as Corporate Finance Director and Javier del Amo Verdura as Technical Director.
- These appointments are intended to successfully implement the Group's future plans to become a multi-energy company.

Madrid, 18 September 2023- The Hafesa Group has decided to strengthen its management team with the aim of further improving its position as one of the leading operators in the market by incorporating Álvaro Sanz Pita, as Corporate Financial Director, and Javier del Amo Verdura, as Technical Director. With these appointments, the Group intends to successfully implement its plans for growth and transformation into a multi-energy company.

Álvaro Sanz Pita will be responsible for the Group's planning and financial management. He has extensive experience in the key areas of finance and business and strategic consulting, having worked with major investment funds and international consultancies such as PwC, KPMG and Accenture Strategy, where he has led strategic transformation projects for companies of different sizes in various industries. He also has extensive experience in key positions, and posts with responsibility in financial departments, having worked in the past as CFO at various corporations.

Meanwhile, Javier del Amo Verdura has extensive professional experience in developing and implementing technical projects in the fuel, electricity and renewable energy industry from his work for large multinationals such as Shell and his activities as an independent consultant. He will be in charge of developing new projects for Hafesa to enter new markets and to complement the services and supplies it offers its customers.

With regard to storage plants, the Hafesa Group's main current asset, his role will be to complete the start-up of current projects and improve the energy efficiency of the facilities, minimising their emissions through self-consumption projects. He will also be in charge of searching for new locations to expand Hafesa's network of plants nationally and internationally.

Regarding Hafesa Oil, the Group's network of service stations, his role will be to manage and supervise the installation of electric vehicle charging points.

Diego Guardamino, Managing Director of Grupo Hafesa, says that: "These two new additions to the management team will be critical in successfully implementing our growth and transformation plans to become a multi-energy company."

Álvaro Sanz Pita has a degree in Business Administration and Management from Rey Juan Carlos University. At the same university, he also graduated in Marketing and Market Research, and is currently studying for an MBA in Business Administration at the EAE Business School.

Javier del Amo Verdura has a degree in Industrial Engineering from the Technical University of Madrid.
